gets it. Even time-wasting can bring misery in your short and helpless life. But solution to this problem exists: you can do everything in time to not be ashamed of yourself in the future.

In my point of ~~the~~ view, ~~also~~ author ment that the more you struggle with ~~the~~ procrastination, the more you you be on leash of this <disstress>. And all time that you seperated for yourself will gone to nothing in particular.

I think it is true that procrastinating can harm your mental health. More than that, it can completely ruin you from inside, until idle! you give up at your own doing. It is because of the weight on your shoulders. Basically, if you know that you need to do a lot of things, but you didn't do it now – you gonna give another kilo on your shoulder, just for not doing anything. And also making everyone around you ~~at~~ unhappy because of your own uselessness.

In my life, I gone ~~to~~ ~~throught~~ a lot of stuff, and this problem still haunts me every year. For ~~exap~~ example: Then I go to work, I'll be doing anything expect work, just to make it tomorrow or on the next week. Or home, where I need to do chores, but I'm not actually doing them, I'm just waiting for the right moment to do them. I will be hesitating to the end thought. Avoiding everything that connected to chores.

In conclusion, postponing is hard, everyone
